FOUND DEAD NEAR THE TRACK.

Joseph Tinsley, an old colored man, who lived near Clopton Station on the Richmond and Petersburg railroad, was found lying by the side of the track at the station dead Sunday morning. It is not known how or at what time Tinsley was killed, but it is thought by the railroad men that he must have gone to sleep on the track and that he was struck by some passing train between the hours of 9 and 19 o'clock Saturday night.

As soon as Tinsley's body was found Justice Jones, of Swansboro', was notified. He summoned a jury and went down to the scene of the accident and held an inquest over the remains. The

The heavy rain of last Friday washed away a part of a brick-wall on Mr. N. Ezekiel's premises, Twelfth and Marshall streets, that was 13 inches thick and feet high.

Woodson could throw down a card Sergeant Hall had grabbed him around the wrist of the right hand, crying, "Til take a hand in this; I want you." This startled the members of the "crow" club, and the other five negroes made a wild rush for exit. Several of them jumped through the windows to the ground, carrying window-glass, sash, and all with them. The others got out by the door, but Woodson, with distorted eyes, and a look of bland amezement, awaited the coming of the patrol-wagon.
When arrested Woodson was smoking a meerschaum pipe, which had been stolen from Mr. Miles's house. In the negro's pockets was found a large bunch of keys of all sorts and sizes. A gold watch, which had been stolen from Mr. Miles and sold to a jeweller was recovered; but the cases had been sent away to be sold as old gold. The cases will be returned. Sergeant Hall thinks he has caught a bad man in Woodson. The negro has only been out of the penitentiary about three months. Investments Under Charters

To the Editor of the Dispatch: To the Editor of the Dispatch:

It is claimed by the silverites that the necessary effect of their financial polky will be to call forth capital from the banks and hourding places and stimulate it to activity in the way of seeking investments. The favorite mode of handling capital nowadays is through the agency of corporate franchises, by virtue of which the parties avoid the personal liability of partners, and can thus measure pretty accurately the extent of the risk incurred by each individual investor. In other words, he knows at the outset misfortune.

It is vitally important, therefore, that

It is vitally important, therefore, that parties proposing to invest their money under a charter should be assured beforehand that the power intended to be exercised has been legally conferred by the act of incorporation.

Legislatures have reased and Governors have approved enagments which the courts have declared to be unconstitutional and void, and the hardship in such cases is especially severe on investers under charters, who discover too late that they are partners instead of corporators. Now to the point: The Constitution of Virginia—Article V... section 16—declares that "No law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title," and this provision has been repeatedly construed by the Court of Appeals. The cases are too numerous, however, to admit of citation; but perhaps the most instructive one is Fidelity Insurance Company vs. S. V. R. R. Co., 86 Virginia, 1.

It is reported that the heavy rains of Saturday did a great deal of damage to property on Fourth street between Jackson and Duval. In several basements the water was fully four feet deep.

The residents of the section applied to the Board of Fire Commissioners for relief, and they turned the matter over to Chief Puller, who at once detailed a firengine to the scene, and it was not until 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon that all the water was pumped out.

surance Company vs. S. V. R. R. Co., 86 Virginia, i.

It is, at least, safe to conclude that a specific franchise not embraced in the title of an act cannot be conferred by any provision or grant contained in the body of the act.

"Titles should distinctly recite what the particular subject of the law is, otherwise, as was formerly the custom in New York, many subjects, the most disconnected and unrelated, are likely to be jumbled together in one statute and under a single title. This afforded such an opportunity for fraud in the enactment of private and local bills that the method was finally prohibited by the Constitution of 1848.

Union has introduced into its Constitution some guardian provision against it.
These prohibitions against promiscuousness of subjects in one enactment apply as well to special as to general legislation, and in either case are intended to defeat any attempt to obtain surreptitiously special privileges or advantages for persons or corporations under color of some alleged benefit to the public."—Ordronaux's Constitutional Legislation, 593.
